"Sopranos" actor Robert Iler, who plays the troubled teen son of mob boss Tony Soprano, was arrested early yesterday on robbery and drug possession charges. Iler, 16, and three other youths were picked up by New York City police and accused of robbing two teens of about $ 40. Iler also was charged with unlawful possession of marijuana, police said. Iler's attorney, Steven Mintz, said, "Robert denies the allegations, and we are cooperating."
